Doc. No: Policy/003 Version 1: 08.11.2022 Version 2: 08.11.2023 Version 3: 27.03.2024

1) Preamble:

The guidelines issued by RBI vide its Notification No. DNBS. 204 / CGM (ASR)-2009 dated 2nd January 2009 and RBI/2023-24/55 DOR.MCS.REC.32/01.01.003/2023-24 dated 18.08.2023 as well as its guidelines on Fair Practices Code for NBFCs, as amended from time to time (RBI Regulations), directs all NBFCs to make available the rates of interest and the approach for gradation of risk on web-site of the companies.

In compliance with the requirements of the RBI regulations including the Fair Practices Code and the good governance practices, the company has put in place the internal guidelines, policies, procedures and a comprehensive interest rate policy.

The interest policy aims to cover:

- The various components of interest rate component
- Approach for gradations of risk
- Rationale for charging differential rates
- Disclosure of rates of interest, changes thereof and publicity there to Background

2) Background:

Veritas Finance is into the business of providing secured and unsecured business loans for the micro enterprises and small enterprises in the urban, semi urban and rural areas. The loan offered to heterogeneous MSME segment, who would otherwise may be excluded from the financial eco system as they may not have adequate documents to prove their ability or intent to repay. Veritas has developed unique subjective assessment credit methodologies to assess these customers and reaches out to them through branch based lending model where our credit officers meet and evaluate the customers after multiple visits to their business, residence and property and have personal discussion to understand their requirements

Such subjective assessments of these customers for low ticket size has its own implication on various aspects which affect the lending rate

Low ticket size and direct visits mean high operating expenses. Untested credit history and lack of documents enhance the credit risk. This perceived risk in the underlying portfolio leads to higher borrowing cost for the company.

The interest rate policy takes into account all the above along with requirement to maintain the profitability.

3) Interest Rate Model:

The interest rate charged by Veritas for the products offered would take into account the following factors.

- 1. Cost of Funds
- 2. Operating Cost
- 3. Risk Premium for the Product Segment
- 4. Profit Margin
- 5. Market Practices

Doc. No: Policy/003 Version 1: 08.11.2022 Version 2: 08.11.2023 Version 3: 27.03.2024

1. Cost of Funds:

Finance cost is the main component in deciding the interest rate charged to the customers. The company borrows from diversified institutions like Banks (including SFBs), NBFCs, HFCs, and Off-shore Financial Institutions and DFIs. While the company's borrowings are expected to be a mix of fixed rate as well as floating rate borrowings, considering the customer segment, we choose to keep the loans to the customers with fixed rate for MSME Rural & Urban and floating rate of interest for our Home loans. The rate to the customers would therefore factor in the risk associated with fluctuations in the interest rate.

2. Cost of operations:

The cost of operations includes manpower cost, infrastructure cost and other administrative costs. Most of these costs are fixed costs and are committed on the basis of budgeted volume of operations. Since these costs come down with increasing volumes and efficiencies, the pricing factors the estimated cost over a reasonable period of time. Also, other factors such as the complexity of the transaction, capital risk weightage, the size of the transaction, location of the borrower and other factors that affect the costs associated with a particular transaction would be taken into account before arriving at the final interest rate quoted to a customer. As a philosophy, the company will charge clients fixed rate assuming a steady state operation. Thus, the high operating cost in the initial stages of start-up and cost of growth would be borne by the shareholders, till the company attains size and scale.

3. Risk Premium:

The segment where Veritas operates is very heterogeneous and the customer profiles are vastly different with regard to nature of business, cash flow, profitability, complexity of operations etc. Our risk premium differs for MSME Loans (Secured & Unsecured) and Home Loans.

Therefore, the risk levels can be quite varied based on the customer segment and product nature.

4. Profit Margin:

The interest rate charged to the customers would include a profit margin decided on the basis of the reasonable return expected by the shareholders and the risks involved. The profit margin is arrived at keeping in mind the need to attract fresh capital to sustain growth and also benchmarked with comparable companies.

5. Market Practices and Other parameters:

i) ALCO View & forecast of market interest rates:

Views of the Asset Liability Management Committee (ALCO) on loan product pricing with respect to prevailing interest rates offered by peer NBFCs for similar products / services shall be taken into consideration. The forecasts and analysis of 'what if' scenarios' conducted by the ALCO are also relevant factors for determining interest rates to be charged. The lending rate is both fixed and floating as well as the fees charged is fixed, taking into account the sustainability of various factors and it is reviewed periodically by the Asset & Liability Management Committee

Doc. No: Policy/003 Version 1: 08.11.2022 Version 2: 08.11.2023 Version 3: 27.03.2024

ii) Prevailing market practices:

While the interest rate charged would broadly depend on the above factors, the fees and other charges applicable will depend on the market practices and the cost of providing such services. While we look at the market practices for the fees and other charges, the policies would always be customer centric and efforts would be not to over burden the otherwise vulnerable customer segment.

Basis the above details for our pricing methodology, we have defined our Benchmark rate linked on the inherent risk of product and customer segment.

"Veritas Prime Lending Rate" (VPLR):

Weighted Average Cost of Funds as on 29th February 2024	10.02%
Average Risk premium	4.00%
Return on Assets	4.50%
Overheads & Cost of operations	5.00%
Veritas Prime Lending Rate	23.52%

The above-mentioned Veritas Benchmark Reference Rate would act as a guidance and the yield for each of the products would vary based on the risk levels of the segment, product nature and market conditions.

With regard to the interest rate charged to the customers for different products, Veritas would operate with the following principles.

- 1. Changes in the borrowing cost would lead to change in the Veritas Reference Rate and would accordingly change the lending rate to the customers.
- 2. Veritas RMC would adopt a risk-based pricing model for its customers and based on the portfolio performance the risk premium would undergo a change and the lending rates may be either higher or lower than the reference rate.
- 3. The return on assets is arrived at basis the expectation on the profitability. The company would absorb any differential ROA other than target to build the loan book operating at rates yielding lesser ROA.
- 4. The difference between the actual Opex and benchmark Opex rate used to arrive at the Veritas Reference rate would be absorbed by the company till it stabilizes on the same and Veritas may operate at rates lesser than the reference rate for some products and incur higher cost of operations.
- 5. Loan products including Home Loans, offered with a longer repayment tenor carry additional interest rate risk. As a policy, the organization will endeavor to minimize this risk by offering the home loans under floating rate, to the extent possible and would be subjected to evaluation for re pricing. Such changes, as required would be discussed at the ALCO and given effect as per the recommendation of ALCO.

Doc. No: Policy/003 Version 1: 08.11.2022 Version 2: 08.11.2023 Version 3: 27.03.2024

The benchmark rate shall be reviewed in the monthly ALCO meeting and necessary changes shall be done if needed. Any interest rate changes due to change in the VPLR change will be communicated to the customer through the medium that deemed fit as easily accessible by the customer.

4) ROI Matrix:

The prevailing interest rate as on Mar.2024, based on the above interest rate policy is enclosed below:

Every customer is communicated the most important terms of the contract including all the above. The sanction letter clearly communicates the terms of contract.

Doc. No: Policy/003 Version 1: 08.11.2022 Version 2: 08.11.2023 Version 3: 27.03.2024

Options available for customer on Rate Change:

Following options are available for the customer on rate reset or at the time of prepayment or any time during the tenure of the loan.

- a) Enhancement/ reduction in EMI
- b) Elongation or contraction of loan tenor
- c) Combination of above (both) options
- d) Prepayment of outstanding loan amount 'in-part'
- e) Prepayment in full

The elongation of the loan tenor will be governed by the restructuring norms mandated by the RBI. In event of change in the ROI due to change in the VPLR, for operational ease, the EMI will be constant only the tenor of the loan will be either extended or contracted based on the change in the interest rate. However, customer can avail any of these options by contacting in the branch or toll-free number or through available online medium.
